A RECIPE FOR SUCCESS: HOSPITALITY MANAGEMENT MEETS CULINARY ARTS

A collaborative degree program from Cornell University’s School of Hotel Administration and The Culinary Institute of America

DEGREE IN CULINARY ARTS

Students generally apply to the collaborative degree program as sophomores and begin their studies with a Culinary Skills class offered every May, where they gain introductory skills and familiarization with the CIA and the learning environment. Then in January or May following the preliminary session, students complete their extended studies (two full semesters) on site at the CIA, working and learning daily in the finest training kitchens in the world.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Students are required to be in good standing and have completed HADM 3340 and HADM 3350 from the Hotel School core curriculum before attending the full program at the CIA.

In addition to the core curriculum, Hotel School students are required to take two specific 3350 from the Hotel School core curriculum before attending the full program at the CIA during their four years at Cornell.

For students energized by all aspects of the foodservice industry, this is a unique opportunity to develop skills and learn the industry from every angle. In the classrooms and labs of the Hotel School, students gain the management expertise to lead foodservice operations around the world. In the state-of-the-art kitchens of the CIA, students gain the technical skills and culinary knowledge that set the standard of excellence in the most innovative and highest-quality establishments in the food industry. These future industry leaders are uniquely positioned to bring depth and innovation to any area in which they work.

Already the recognized leader in service and hospitality management, Cornell’s School of Hotel Administration offers this collaborative degree program with The Culinary Institute of America, the world’s premier culinary college, as a one-of-a-kind experience for students.

FEES AT A GLANCE

Estimated tuition and fees are outlined for the January 2012 Culinary Arts program. The second semester rates are subject to fiscal year 2012/2013 increases. The most updated rate information can be found online at www.ciachef.edu or in the CIA viewbook. Financial aid is available for the two full semesters of study. Prospective students should follow the CIA application instructions to apply.

Note: In addition to CIA tuition and fees, students will pay for summer enrollment at Cornell.
